Poucas atividades estão tão associadas à busca da felicidade quanto o desejo de viajar para lugares distantes. Embora não faltem publicações que recomendam variados destinos, é raro encontrar na literatura uma reflexão sobre as motivações que levam o viajante a abandonar o conforto do lar e a enfrentar o desconhecido. O escritor Alain de Botton preenche essa lacuna em A arte de viajar, na boa companhia de nomes como Flaubert, Edward Hopper e Van Gogh. Em seu passeio pelo universo das viagens, ele se desloca por Barbados, Amsterdã, Madri e o deserto do Sinai, examinando o sublime e o comezinho, descobrindo o lado exótico dos aeroportos estrangeiros e o discreto charme dos postos de gasolina de beira de estrada. E assim Alain fornece a bagagem imprescindível para o pensamento e dá sua contribuição para que as jornadas sejam, acima de tudo, mais felizes.
