Best-seller do New York Times, novo romance de Nora Roberts é uma comovente história de redenção.

Era uma típica noite de sexta-feira em um shopping nos arredores de Portland, Maine, em 2005, quando três adolescentes fortemente armados começaram a atirar, matando e ferindo muitas pessoas antes de serem contidos.

Anos mais tarde, dois dos sobreviventes, considerados os jovens heróis da tragédia, estão dando continuidade a suas vidas. Ela, seguindo os passos da avó, encontra na escultura uma maneira de expor as emoções. Ele, inspirado pela primeira policial a chegar ao local do tiroteio, torna-se detetive.

A morte misteriosa de alguns dos demais sobreviventes do massacre parece indicar que um conspirador está à espreita. Incertos de quem será o próximo alvo, aqueles que conseguiram a duras penas reconstruir a própria história precisarão encontrar um no outro o abrigo necessário para sepultar o passado de uma vez por todas.
