Une petite perle du XVIIIe siècle où Charles de Peyssonnel (1727-1790), ancien diplomate, jette un regard lucide et amusé sur les mœurs de ses contemporains, qui pourraient bien être les nôtres, dans une société au bord de l'explosion : embouteillages et folie immobilière à Paris, surproduction de livres inutiles, amour des chiens, orthographe à la dérive... nous n'avons définitivement rien inventé !

"Une merveille d'écriture" (Jérôme Garcin, Le Nouvel Obs).
